Ford Airport Reaches Major Milestone: 50 Million Customers Served!

Sometime today, Gerald R. Ford International Airport will reach a significant milestone: the airport will serve its 50 millionth passenger since opening its doors in November 1963.

"We are delighted to be recognizing such a major milestone in our history," commented aeronautics director James Koslosky. "The West Michigan region has been a strong supporter of Gerald R. Ford International throughout our nearly 45 years, and we eagerly look forward to serving our next 50 million passengers in the years ahead."

Gerald R. Ford International Airport currently serves just over 2 million passengers annually. The airport is second busiest in the State of Michigan, and ranks among the top 15% of busiest airports nationwide.
